Collections For Greek War Relief Fund Starts Next Week

All Wage Earners to be Contacted; Expect to Raise Several Hundred Dollars for the Fund.

The campaign to raise funds for the Greek War Relief Fund will be set in motion locally next week and it is hoped that several hundred dollars will be raised to aid the gallant Greeks.

On Sunday the miners' union gave their support to the campaign by permitting its members to be solicited for donations. In addition the union will absorb the cost of shifts lost by the canvassers. One of the canvassers will give his services for nothing and has voiced his intention of donating his day's wages to the fund.

The miners will be canvassed at the mines and arrangements have been made for donations to be deducted from the statements.

The merchants and mine officials will take care of their own canvass and it is expected next week will see a couple of canvassers visit the business men for their donations.

The council started the campaign off last week with $10 donation.

Three New Booths to be Featured at Carnival

Local Orchestra to Supply Music for Jitney Dance; Tickets Are Selling Well.

Three new booths will be set up at the forthcoming Elks' carnival, according to Chairman Nick Nicholas. He was unable to state just what the booths would display, but he had received word from the Calgary carnival firm that they would be attractive and the prizes worth while.

Due to the lack of an organized band in the Pass, which would be available for the carnival dates, the carnival committee have contacted a number of talented Coleman musicians to organize an orchestra and play at the carnival. The musicians have agreed to do so and are now busy rehearsing all the popular dance hits.

The ticket sale is going along smoothly and the Misses Annie Dudas and Annie Salus and Owen Sherratt and Kenneth Fry are having a tight race in the ticket selling campaign to win the handsome prize which will be awarded the person selling the most tickets. Other ticket sellers are not far behind and with a little spurt can easily catch up with the leaders. The prize will be worth winning. Last year it was a C.C.M. bicycle.

Freda Antrobus Captivates at Recital in Eastern Canada

A wire was received by Mayor and Mrs. Antrobus on Tuesday afternoon from Freda informing them that she had passed her examinations of June 7, 11 and 14 with first class honors and had also won the gold medal. Her success in these examinations wins her the L.T.C.M. She already has the A.T.C.M. in both vocal and piano having won these with honors in past examinations.

Freda Antrobus, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Fred Antrobus who has been studying for the past several years at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, was accorded high praise recently by Critic Hector Charlesworth in the Toronto Globe and Mail on June 8 he wrote:

Freda Antrobus, a young lyric soprano who hails from Coleman, Alberta, and has, during the last two or three seasons, made concerts and radio appearances in the East, gave her first song recital at Conservatory Hall last night. It was said that she was suffering from a severe cold, but the smoothness of her vocalism was such that no uninformed listener suspected it.

She is very fair and attractive in personality. Her voice is of high light timbre; singularly pure and sweet. What helped her to carry on so well was her admirable breathing and easy production. Her diction is notably fine, not merely clear, but refined in

Theatre Notes

Another really good film comes to The Palace this week-end entitled "The Forest Rangers." It is filmed in technicolor and many beautiful scenes of the forest, lakes and blue sky are shown. It has adventure, love and comedy and featured ranking artists such as Fred McMurran, Paulette Goddard and Susan Hayward with Lynne Overman and Eugene Pallette to look after the comedy. In addition there is an up-to-date feature in the March of Time.

At Cole's theatre this week-end the picture all have been talking about, Noel Coward's "In Which We Serve" starring Noel Coward. It is the best picture of the war to date. It shows Britons on the shores at Dunkirk, it shows men clinging desperately to a raft while Nazi dive bombers machine gun them, it shows rescues at sea, it has love, it has drama, it has everything.

Cigarette Fund Notes

Dear Friends: Just a short note to thank you for cigarettes received May 10. N. Youchuck.

Received cigarettes O.K. Thank you—J. Kroesing.

Hello Boys: Thanks once again for the cigs. just received. I am keeping good and hope you are all the same in Coleman—Jimmy Anderson.

Dear Sirs: Cigs received and many thanks as they are really appreciated. We pay great respect to you and all who make such gifts possible. Good luck to you and thanks a million—J. R. Jones.

Sirs: Many thanks for carton of cigarettes received. All the best—F. Marcond.

Dear Friends: The regular issue of cigarettes, which I thank you most sincerely, arrived yesterday. I hear all the men from Coleman say the same thing. That one parcel they are sure of is the cigarettes from Coleman—J. T. Dunbar.

the handling of vowels and consonants; and in a long program of exceptional interest she revealed a natural musical temperament.

The distinguished quality of her legato style was revealed in the opening group of classical lyrics. Handel's "Art Thou Troubled, Music Shall Charm Thee" and in Haydn's setting of Viola's speech, "She Never Told Her Love," her declamation of Shakespeare was admirable. Perhaps her finest achievement was a smooth and lovely rendering of a famous aria from Mozart's "Shepherd King," in which her tones flowed with captivating ease, and one of the most appealing of all operatic cadenzas was beautifully sung.

Another notable achievement was the old song "Hav' You Seen but a White Lily" sung without accompaniment in pure, steady sustained intonation. A group of Elizabethan songs for the lute, edited for modern use by E. H. Fellowes, was rendered in pure, right spirit and her singing of two Welsh Bergetries was piquant and delicate.

The famous aria from Brahms' Requiem "Ye Who Now Sorrow" requires a soprano voice of heavier timbre than was not one of her successes. But on the other hand she was delightful in the rippling phrases of the Gavotte from Massenet's "Manon."

Several lyrics on the latter part of her program were of a literary interest. There was Rowley's setting of the Spring Song from "The Heart's Journey," followed by a setting by Finzi of Milton's sonnet "When I Consider," which ends with the immortal line "They also serve who only stand and wait." In both instances the music was less important than the text which was graciously accompanied. A number in which literary and musical interest were equal was Cole Porter's glowing music for the Spring Song from "Hiawatha's Departure," sung with fine emotional fervor.

The accompanist was the gifted pianist Frances Marr.

Dear Friends: I have received this parcel of tobacco about ten days ago. Thanks a million and keep up the good work. I believe if you keep going like this you'll never run out. The end is in sight. My best regards to all the folks in Coleman—W. S. Vollandorff.

Dear Friends: Have been receiving your cigarettes quite regularly. They certainly come in handy and are greatly appreciated. I am the only Albertan in the unit and have not seen anyone from home for some time. Last I saw was Susie Caroe. I just got back from my holiday in Scotland and the cigarettes came in very handy. Thanks a lot—Sam Gillies.

Dear Sirs: Received my first parcel of cigarettes and was certainly glad to get them. Thanks ever so much for same as these Limey cigarettes are dynamite to smoke. I am driving a lorry to London and I do a lot of smoking. London is a very busy city. Went on nine days leave up to Scotland and had a wonderful time visiting relatives. Met Dave Nevey and he is looking very fit. He is stationed not far from here. Well thanks again for the cigs.—Alex Chalmers.

NEW TACTICAL AIR FORCE HAS BEEN FORMED IN BRITAIN TO WORK WITH INVASION ARMIES

London.—Looking to the invasion of Europe, the air ministry announced the formation of a tactical air force to work with the armies striking from Britain. The new R.A.F. organization will conform closely with Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham's tactical air force which proved so successful in Tunisia. It displaced the army co-operation command and will be under Air Vice Marshal John Henry D'Almeida, 49, who has served as a soldier, sailor, marine and airman.

Maj.-Gen. Ira C. Eaker has disclosed that the 8th United States army air force also has a tactical division, but details of its organization and command have not been announced.

The new R.A.F. force will be made up primarily of fighters, fighter-bombers, medium bombers and specialized types of planes which proved their worth in North Africa, although the organization will be flexible enough to take in other units as needed for specific jobs.

One of the most important features will be the high mobility of the operations and communications set-up, enabling its squadrons to travel with invasion armies outside Britain. The tactical air force is being placed within the fighter command to permit maximum flexibility as between current air operations from Britain and the necessary continuous and close training with the army.

As the result of lessons learned in the March army exercises in Britain and the experience in North Africa, the co-operation command was reshaped and expanded into a new force. All squadrons needed for special invasion tasks will be passed through it and trained to the necessary standard.

Canadian participation in the tactical air force is likely to involve Canadian-manned fighter squadrons, fighter-bomber and Canadian army co-operation squadrons equipped with fast Mustangs. The Canadian bomber group as part of the R.A.F. bomber command will carry out strategic bombings and long-range attacks. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton has long favored the establishment of the new set-up.

ANOTHER LIDICE

Town in Crete Has Been Wiped Out By The Nazis

Cairo.—Photographs recently smuggled out of Crete indicate that the town of Kandanos on that Grecian island has been wiped out by the Germans in a gesture of reprisal duplicating the destruction of the Czechoslovakian town of Lidice.

MINISTER MACDONALD SAYS DOMINION NOW HAS MORE THAN FIVE HUNDRED SHIPS IN NAVY

Ottawa.—Navy Minister Macdonald told the House of Commons that Canada has more than 12 and not quite 24 destroyers, more than 70 and not quite 100 corvettes in commission at the moment. There were almost as many minesweepers as corvettes and about an equal number of motor launches.

In continued discussion of the $489,145,000 navy estimates for 1943-44, the minister said on the whole he was satisfied with the production of escort vessels for the navy. He made his statement of the approximate numbers of navy ships in various categories after D. King Hazen (Prog. Con., Saint John-Albert) had said the minister was not correct when he said Canada had a fleet of more than 550 ships of all kinds.

Mr. Hazen said the size of the navy should be kept in proper perspective. Canada had no capital ships and none in larger classes, and the minister was nearer the mark when he referred to the Dominion's "small ship navy." Mr. Macdonald replied that he had reported 550 ships as the total in the possession of the navy, great and small.

All destroyers and frigates had crews of more than 100 men and corvettes and minesweepers had more than 50, while the usual crew of a minesweeper was less than 25. Auxiliary merchant cruisers had a complement of more than 200.

From the start of the war until the end of last April 1,727 persons were discharged from the navy, the minister said.

Mr. Macdonald said the average cost of clothing for a petty officer was $183 per year, for a seaman $139, for a Wren $140 and for a sea cadet $75. Extra winter clothing, such as mitts and heavy caps, cost $8.

Mr. Macdonald said that in the establishment of the Canadian navy after the war there should be cruisers as well as destroyers, with submarines to round out the organization. But in the present war even if Canada had a strong fleet of submarines there would be little for them to do unless they were sent to distant theatres of war such as the Mediterranean or the southwest Pacific.

"What we need in this war is ships to fight submarines, not submarines themselves," he said. At the moment, Canada looked on the battle of the Atlantic as its great struggle and had built ships suitable for that purpose. There might have to be some changes to establish the ideal combination of ships for Pacific operations.

Award At Camp Investiture

The Earl of Athlone pins the Order of the British Empire on Group Captain G. R. McGregor, D.F.C., of Montreal, Que., during his recent tour of the west coast, at a special investiture. Group Captain McGregor was presented from being present at the recent investiture in Ottawa by his R.C.A.F. duties.

LADIES INVITED

Women's Division Of Air Force Are Holding "At Home"

Winnipeg. (R.C.A.F. News Service).—No longer will mother be devalued on her daughter's first "forty-eight" to hear about her job in the Royal Canadian Air Force (Women's Division). She can go to an air force station, meet of the girls in blue, and see for herself what happens when her daughter, along with hundreds of other comrades-in-arms injects a shot in the arm to Canada's war effort by "joining up".

Headquarters of No. 2 Training Command, R.C.A.F., Winnipeg, announced that various women's organizations and women friends of R.C.A.F. (W.D. personnel) in the district invited to visit air force stations in the near future. It is proposed to have a "W.D. At Home" monthly at stations upon completion of the first visit.

The visitors will see the air force women tapping out official correspondence in R.C.A.F. orderly rooms, filing documents, making wireless keys chatter under their shiffling touch, watch dexterous hands pack parachutes, mend aircraft fabrics just as nonchalantly as if they were spending an afternoon in a sewing circle. They will marvel as airwomen record aircraft traffic from the control towers, and do dozens of the other skilful and exacting jobs entrusted to members of the Women's Division.

Commanding officers of 11 air force stations have been notified to invite ladies who live near the stations to a "Women's Division At Home" on set days before June 27.

The following stations will hold "W.D. At Home" between now and June 27: No. 8 Repair Depot, Winnipeg; No. 1 Central Navigation School, Rivers, Man.; No. 4 Service Flying Training School, Saskatoon; No. 10 Service Flying Training School, Dauphin, Man.; No. 11 Service Flying Training School, Yorkton, Sask.; No. 12 Service Flying Training School, Brandon, Man.; No. 23 Elementary Flying Training School, Davidson, Sask.; No. 3 Bombing and Gunnery School, Macdonald, Man.; No. 5 Bombing and Gunnery School, Dufour, Sask.; No. 7 Bombing and Gunnery School, Paulson, Man.; No. 3 Wireless School, Winnipeg.

Setting out the reasons for the "W.D. At Home" parties, Flight Officer Barbara Kemp, Women's Division staff officer of No. 2 Training Command stated, "The intention is to foster relationships between women's groups and the Women's Division, R.C.A.F. and to repay in some measure the hospitality extended by these various women to the W.D.'s, also that the women's organizations may have actual insight into, not only the work that the Women's Division is doing on the station in order that the men may fly but also to obtain a realization of the recreational facilities, living and amenities on the station." Arrangements can also be made, if women's organizations so desire, to have W.D. officers speak and show movies of W.D. activities at their meetings. At many stations near small localities, arrangements will be made so that visitors can spend most of the day at the station. They will be served lunch.

TO HELP ALLIES

Soldiers From Ethiopia Trained In Use Of Modern Weapons

Washington.—Ethiopian soldiers are being trained to take part in the Allied invasion of Italy. A member of Emperor Haile Selassie's cabinet, Yilma Desessa, who has been attending the United Nations food conference, says Ethiopian soldiers are now training with modern weapons in place of the spears and antiquated rifles with which they tried to defend their country against the Italians in 1936.

CANADA WILL KEEP UP RECORD FOR PRODUCTION OF MUNITIONS AS LONG AS THE WAR LASTS

Premier Of Alberta

Hon. E. C. Manning, 34-year-old friend of the late Premier Aberhart, of Alberta, who has been sworn in as premier of Alberta, becoming the youngest provincial government leader in Canada. The former provincial secretary and minister of trade and industry was the unanimous choice of the Social Credit party.

Ottawa.—Munitions Minister Howe laid the accomplishments of Canadian war production before the House of Commons and concluded a long story of success with the assurance that however long the war might last there would be no break in the "production front." He told of the energy that raised the Dominion to the fourth steel producer of the United Nations, and of the admiration for Canadian inventive genius that made Canadian-made radio equipment tops in its class.

The minister told, too, of the 500,000th motor vehicle that soon will run from the assembly line of an automobile plant, and of how 50 per cent of the load-carrying vehicles used by the Eighth Army in its triumphant race across North Africa came from this country. He told of the Canadian "dry pin track" for tanks, approved for production, which gives better performance than any other type and can be made more economically.

Speaking of a department expected to spend $3,425,000,000 in this fiscal year, he disclosed Canada was making the most powerful explosive developed anywhere in the present war. He described 1,400 Valentine tanks going from Canadian workshops to Russia on schedule, how 1,700 Ram tanks have been produced and how Canadian workmen soon will be producing M-4 tanks, now standard for United States, British and Canadian armies.

He spoke of Canada's production of planes and how the first giant Lancaster bomber built in Canada will be test-flown soon. He spoke, too, of how his department is taking over responsibility of buying food for thousands of men working on the Alaska highway, under an arrangement with the United States.

Canada, now producing aircraft at the rate of 80 weekly, will show a steady increase in output, he said. To date, Canada had produced 8,000 planes and is in production on nine types.

"We are now passing through an intermediate stage, entering production of new trainer types and just achieving production of combat planes such as the Lancaster and Mosquito, which presented very special and difficult production problems," Mr. Howe said. "... While we have had ups and downs in our monthly planned production, actually the total poundage of planes produced has steadily mounted since the middle of 1940, when we were producing only two planes a week."

Service types in production are the PBX-54 Catalina, a coastal reconnaissance amphibian, the Mosquito, a fast twin-engine fighter-bomber, and the Nordyn Norseman, the only all-Canadian designed plane on the list and regarded as the best single-engine all-round transport type yet designed.

Mr. Howe said the aircraft industry employed more than 100,000 workers, of whom more than 25 per cent were women.

CANADA'S FAVORABLE TRADE BALANCE HAS SHOWN INCREASE DURING THE LAST FOUR MONTHS

Toronto.—Trade Minister James A. MacKinnon of Canada told the post-war planning conference of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that Canada's favorable trade balance in the first four months of 1943 has increased by more than $126,000,000.

Total imports in the four months were $338,528,983, he said. A decrease of roughly $10,000,000 over the same period of last year, while total exports were $777,923,816, or an increase of roughly $117,000,000. Total trade for the four months was $1,322,186,023, an increase of $106,000,000, while the favorable balance of trade was shown at $245,128,057.

He declared that in 1942, Canadian manufactures rose to a total value of $2,385,000,000 and total trade amounted to $4,000,000,000.

"We have done this for one purpose—to win this war in the shortest possible time," he said.

"I need hardly remind you of the extent of new developments in the great Mackenzie river basin and its territory adjacent to it," Mr. MacKinnon continued. "The entire north country now is alive with activity. There will be permanent beneficial results of very definite advantage not only to immediate adjoining regions but to all Canada."

"The Alaska highway itself will form a very necessary link in that great chain of roads to constitute the master Pan-American highway connecting the two continents of this hemisphere. I have no doubt that when peace comes again this same road will lead eventually into Asiatic Russia and to the Orient itself."

A great good will arise from this war if the lessons of yesterday are not forgotten, said Sir Clive Baillieu, United Kingdom member of the combined raw materials board and member of the British supply council in North America. An Anglo-American partnership would be one means of securing this, he added.

"The reason, as I see it, for the wars between 1914 and 1939 is because Britain and the United States did not make clear to the world that there was a point at which American and British opinion would stand. Rather the tendency was to isolationism....

"A growing understanding is developing and both British and American peoples are learning at first hand about each other."

In a resumption of the conference on manpower, Henry Taylor, member of the national war labor committee, said one of the serious problems confronting the government was the resistance from pressure groups during applications for wage increases. Of these, 82 per cent came from employer groups, partly because of pressure from labor bodies and partly because of competitive conditions.

The government policy concerning wages is that stabilization cannot be static but must change from time to time to meet changing conditions, he said. The phrase, "Equal pay for equal work" was a misnomer. It didn't express the truth. It should be, "Equal pay for equal results."

One of Hollywood's film producers state that war pictures will be soft-pedalled from now on. People realize that most of them are just make-believe, particularly after seeing "Desert Victory," actually filmed on the North African battlefield. Some of the pictures shown in which airmen are doing wonderful stunts and shooting down enemy planes, products of Hollywood gallantry and imagination, have bored people, for they realize it is just make-believe, of which airmen who know the limits of performance and human endurance, are among the most critical.

1943 CALGARY EXHIBITION AND STAMPEDE WILL BE CANADA'S GREATEST SHOW

Plans are rapidly nearing completion for the 58th celebration of the annual Calgary Exhibition and Stampede, July 5 to 10. All features of this great event will again be presented, along with many added new attractions.

The show this year has been dedicated to "Quality Food Production for Victory and Freedom," and it will mirror the Canadian war effort, particularly in the field of livestock and agricultural products. The livestock exhibit is expected to be one of the finest in many years with a very large entry anticipated. The swine show, in keeping with the times, will probably be the largest ever held in Canada. On display in the spacious cattle pavilion will be an outstanding exhibit of "keystones" of breed improvement.

The biggest Stampede in the world, with 500 cowboys competing in the hair-raising events, will again feature the afternoon performances. Horse races, with seven races daily, will intersperse the programme on the last four days, Wednesday to Saturday. Monday and Tuesday afternoons will be filled with the most thrilling collection of western sports ever presented. Along with the Stampede on those afternoons, the track events will consist of Roman standing, pony express, stake turning and cart races. Calgary has long been famous for its exciting chuck wagon races held each evening in front of the grandstand. These afternoon attractions are expected to challenge the thrills of the chuck wagons.

The glorious week will begin with the Stampede parade on Monday morning at 10 a.m., for which the armed services are again co-operating to display Canada's mighty forces of war. Indians, cowboys and old timers will join the services to present one of the finest spectacles ever presented. The Indians will again come to the Exhibition for their annual holiday and will camp in their picturesque surroundings at the grounds. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings street displays will be presented in down-town Calgary. The old timers will again entertain all their old friends in the pleasant atmosphere of their old log cabin.

The evening attraction on the grandstand platform is entitled "Allies Victorious," and will combine clever comedy and mirthful music in the most attractive presentation ever staged on the "A" circuit. Each evening the grandstand performance will be opened with the thrilling chuck wagon races. Already over 20 entries have been received for this event, the greatest entry for many years, and thrills and spills will be the result for at least five heats each night. Saturday evening the Indians will parade on the platform in their colorful costumes and Stampede championships will be presented to the top cowboys of the week. Fireworks will be presented on Monday and Saturday evenings, and will undoubtedly be the greatest displays presented in Canada this year.

The All Canadian Midway, "Frolie Land," with many new rides and shows will be in Calgary again for the week of July 5 to 10, and will do its part in providing entertainment and relaxation for the public generally and the members of the armed services stationed in the west.

Seat reservations may be made by mail accompanied by self-addressed stamped envelope with cheque or money order.

or other essential work during the vacation period, and appealed to teachers not to regard the closing of schools this year as a holiday, but rather as an opportunity to aid directly in solving Canada's wartime labor problems.

The local Selective Service office will give special attention to registering teachers, either for work in the district or for essential work in their home locality, or even elsewhere, depending upon where work is available. It is not the intention of the service to keep teachers away from special summer courses which are sometimes required to be taken. Moreover, it is emphasized that teaching itself is a very high priority occupation, and

"WE NOT ONLY HAUL 'EM - WE BUILD 'EM TOO"

ALTHOUGH we, the Canadian railways, are carrying vastly more traffic than at any time in history, we are also building guns and tanks, ships and shells. Our machinery of production hums day and night. Implements of war roll from our plants in steady streams. They're made by the railways... hauled by the railways... the railways of Canada.

Only your railways, ready and capable of meeting the emergency before it occurred, can handle this double "must"... mass transportation and mass war production.

Your railways met a mighty challenge in Canada's period of construction. They are rendering dual service in War's period of destruction. They will be needed more than ever in the reconstruction period of peace. They will meet that challenge, too!

Stamp Out The U-Boat With Depth Charges

Starting soon a war savings campaign is opening for the purchase of depth charges for all our naval units. Every bit of money taken in this campaign will be earmarked for the building up of a vast reserve of depth charges for use in the immediate future.

Germany pins its hopes of delaying and crippling the Allied attack upon Hitler's European fortress by the extensive use of U-Boats. The best weapon to destroy these under-sea raiders is the depth-charge, which is a simple but highly destructive form of attack.

A vigilant navy and an unlimited supply of 'ash-cans' will be a guarantee that the U-boat will in the long run fail in its purpose of crippling the Allied war effort.

Help protect the Atlantic and Mediterranean sea lanes with an abundant supply of depth-charges.

Your Income Tax....

MINISTER OF NATIONAL REVENUE
CANADA

FELLOW CANADIAN

I would like to remind the two million taxpayers of Canada of their obligation to file a 1942 Income Tax Return before the 30th of June.

This year, the forms have been simplified so that they can be completed with a minimum of time and effort.

The Income Tax dollars that Canadians pay are necessary in our present struggle. They are an investment in our future peace and security. They are fighting dollars... Victory dollars.

Income Tax is fair to all, as each person is taxed in accordance with his ability to pay.

There is no easy way to win a war. Almost half the costs of this war must be paid by taxes. I know that the Income Tax is not a pleasant burden, but I also know that to win the war, Canadians are willing to fulfil their obligations... to pay the price and to shoulder their responsibilities with the same unbeatable spirit as shown by those who have gone from our shores to fight.

51,321 individual shareholders own Canada's Chartered Banks. The average holding is 28 shares. Most of these shareholders are Canadians.

The wide distribution of bank ownership is indicated by the fact that 36,574 individuals, living in all parts of Canada, hold shares in the Chartered Banks of Canada. Of the remaining shareholders, 8,987 live elsewhere in the British Empire.

Some further facts about Canada's Banks:

There are 4,369,740 savings deposit accounts in the Chartered Banks of Canada, averaging $391 each. Safeguarding the funds of depositors is a primary function of commercial banking. Banks keep themselves in such a position that anybody going to the bank to withdraw his savings can get his money. Banks, like any other business, exist because they provide service which a community needs and is willing to pay for at a rate which will yield a reasonable return.

Every day, bank loans are helping Canadians in all walks of life and in all parts of Canada to profit from their individual enterprise and industry.

This discovery, as a result of the tests is that the Vitamin B bread now approved by the Canadian Government, rather than the reinforced loaf of the United States, or the whole wheat bread of Great Britain is the prototype of the bread of the future. In the tests, Canadian Vitamin B bread was classed best.

Up To Standard

Coinage Of Canada Has Been Assayed For Another Year

Every year about this time the privy council comes out with the news that Canada's coinage is being made according to the specifications of the law—the verdict of the "trial of the pyx."

The "pyx" is the box at the Royal Canadian mint—or any mint, for that matter—where every so often a sample coin is placed for future assay at the annual "trial."

This year the assay commissioners were Dr. L. G. Turnbull, R. W. Hoff and R. J. Trill, all of Ottawa. Judge E. J. Daly of Ottawa kept an eye on the proceedings, along with Dr. A. K. Eaton, taxation investigator representing the finance department.

First the coins were weighed and found to be well within the specified weight under the Currency Act. Then they were assayed.

Finance Minister Ilsey summed the thing up for the committee of the privy council: "The findings referred to indicate that the coin, both as to weight and fineness, conforms with the standards established by the Currency Act."

And that, for another year, is that.

All Were Quite Young

So Far 22 British Peers Have Been Victims Of War

Twenty-two of Britain's titled noblemen, including two members of the royal family, have died in active service or as a result of enemy action so far during the war, official records showed. Most of the casualties were youths in their twenties.

Seventeen peers are listed as having been killed in battle or dying in active service. The other five were bombing victims or the casualties of other war-caused tragedies. In the World War, twenty-three noblemen perished. Dukes, earls, viscounts and barons have been killed in service since hostilities started in 1939. But according to Cyril F. J. Hankinson, editor of Debrett's, a directory of the peerage, this war has not yet extinguished any titles, whereas the other war ended several because the title-holders who fell had no heirs eligible for the rank.

In addition to the dead several noblemen are prisoners of war. Among them is Lord Haig, only son of Field Marshal Earl Haig, commander of the British forces in France in the first world war. The present earl was with a tank outfit in the Middle East when he was captured.

The royal family mourns the loss of the Duke of Kent, brother of King George VI, who was killed Aug. 25, 1942, in an air crash while on active duty, and Lord Frederick Cambridge, a nephew of Queen Mary.

The first peers to die in this war were the Duke of Northumberland and the Earl of Coventry, both of whom fell in the line of duty in 1940. Northumberland, a member of one of England's most prominent families, held a dukedom established in 1768. The Coventry earldom was founded in 1697.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JOHN DESCRIBES TRUE CHRISTIANS

Golden text: But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the love of Jesus his Son cleanseth us from all sin. 1 John 1:7.

Lesson: 1 John.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 15.

Explanations and Comments

Christ the Christian's Propitiation for sins, 1 John 2:1, 2. My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye may not sin. The tone is that of a father speaking to his children; one commentator says it is rather that of a glorified saint addressing mankind from a higher world. The words are spoken by an old man who, as only an old person would, addresses his readers, though adults, as "Little Children."

That ye may not sin. Even the best of men do sin. "We are so beset by circumstances, predilection, habit, prejudice, that we sin either in omission or commission. If, however, our sin is not deliberate, if it is repugnant to us, if in spite of it we are honestly and sincerely committed to doing what is becoming to the children of God, there is a remedy for our sin. The atonement, which Christ made is such as to make him our advocate (or paraclete) with the Father in our behalf. A paraclete is one who stands alongside another to plead his cause. Christ is our paraclete" (John Gardner).

A True Christian Keeps Christ's Commandments, 1 John 2:3-6. And hereby we know that we know him. The verb "know" occurs 37 times in this short epistle. And hereby we know: "that is one of our needs today: affirmative men and women, believers who know the Lord, and who know that they know him" (J. H. Jowett). We can be certain that we know Christ by keeping his commandments—that is the proof. The one who claims to have a knowledge of him, but fails to keep his commandments, John brands as a liar—the truth is not in him, he is blind to his own condition. He may know much about Christ, his mind may have grasped many truths in regard to him, but if he has not learned to love and obey him, he does not know him. God is only known in his Son, and the proof of one's abiding in him, continuing in fellowship with him, is obedience to his commands, a striving to walk as he walked.

A man's perfect obedience is the proof of perfect love, in him verily hath the love of God, that is, the redeeming love of God, been perfected, reached its perfect expression.

If you go visiting for a week-end or longer, it is the polite thing to take along your ration book.

Knows His Parachute

Veteran 'Chutist Has Now Joined The Air Force

AC2 LORNE BENVILLE

If at some future date, AC2 Lorne Benville, Portage-la-Prairie, after a stiff battle with Messerschmitts in the role of air gunner, finds it advisable to "bail out," he'll probably consider the drop to earth a bit monotonous . . . for it will boost his "jump" total over the sixty mark.

Sitting by his tidy bunk at No. 2 Manning Depot, Brandon, Man., AC2 Benville surveyed his new job in dispassionate fashion. At Brandon he awaits the first step in the conversion of a veteran parachute test-jumper in civilian life to an air gunner in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

"I figure being an air gunner is about the best way to do my part in winning the war," observed the quiet, soft-spoken airman. "To me it seems no more dangerous than parachute test-jumping." He speaks with authority on jumping having started his career as a parachutist four years ago at the age of 16. From heights as low as 2,000 feet and as high as 15,000 feet he made 60 jumps. In addition to test jumping he did stunt work at fairs and exhibitions.

According to Benville, parachute jumping is only as dangerous as one makes it. "There is actually no sensation of falling during the drop through space," he will tell you. "You just step straight out of the ship for a walk in the fresh air—straight down at 125 miles an hour."

Reluctantly, the erstwhile test-jumper told of a couple of his "near misses". Once his harness worked loose during the drop and the reserve parachute caught in front of the rip-cord; he dropped 6,500 feet before he got the chute to blossom out. Another time, he tripped as he threw himself out of the aircraft, plunged straight down thousands of feet while he fumbled for his rip cord ring. "Finally I found it, or I wouldn't be here to tell the story," he told with a smile.

Benville's wife lives at Portage la Prairie. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Benville live in Toronto, Ont. He is a member of the Canadian Parachute Club.

Greatly Appreciated

Senator Raeburn Made No Speech When He Introduced Winston Churchill

When Speaker Sam Raeburn introduced Prime Minister Churchill to the U.S. Congress, he did a great job, states the St. Mary's Journal-Argus. He used only 30 words which included the phrase, "one of the most outstanding figures of all the world." And maybe the crowded house which came to hear Churchill, didn't appreciate the polished brevity. Unlike many introducers who start out with the statement: "Our speaker really needs no introduction" and then launch out on a lengthy tirade, Speaker Raeburn said all that was necessary in a moment and then he sat down. His good judgment made a wonderful impression. It was an example which we trust will have its effect wherever speakers are introduced throughout the world from now on. Speaker Raeburn made history.

Has Won And Kept Respect And Love Of People

Queen Mother Mary, princess in her own right, is descended from that Duke of Cambridge who was a son of George III. She was a cousin of the then Duke of York, who married in 1893 and who became King in 1910. George V. described her publicly as a "constant helpmate in every endeavor for our people's good." She has seen much sorrow, private and national. Through it all she has been brave, patient and helpful. She is a Victorian worthy of a great epoch and the sterner trials of human fortitude in our own time.

Queen Mother Mary loves London and the Londoners love her. The slums know her as a pleasant, kindly visitor, friendly, guileless of condescension, democratic. She couldn't keep away from the bombed districts in 1940. George VI is said to have had a good deal of trouble in persuading his mother to leave town. Finally he succeeded. Pretty soon we heard of her. She was established in a village. She was doing war work like any other villager.

One thinks of her as wearing a Victorian toque and a long gray cloak. She wears what she likes. Nobody can tell her what fashions she should follow. A good Victorian again she is fond of the theatre. This is her third war, but she is not discouraged. In the First World War by accepting the place of Commandant in Chief of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps, W.A.A.C., she insured its success when a lot of serpents' tongues were wagging. Sensible, active, quiet, strong, she has deserved for more than 40 years the respect and love of her people—New York Times.

JUST ANOTHER JOB

A small boy walked into the police station at Belleville, Ont., and asked the desk sergeant to peel a big, red apple he had in his hand. When asked if he couldn't eat the apple with the skin on, he said, yes, he could, but his baby sister outside couldn't. The sergeant peeled the apple.

PATTERN FOR DISASTER

BY J. B. RYAN

CHAPTER VII

AFTER De Nova had left the room Guillermo's attention turned to Chris Morgan. "You should have considered, senior, that I would inquire what books had been known to Christopher Morgan, the supposed novelist. But you almost won the game, Lieutenant. What did you do—switch glasses on Verde in the dining room?"

"Something like that," answered Morgan, not to satisfy Guillermo's curiosity, but because the dialogue might disclose the truth to Rosita and Esteban. "And you—how did you find out that the fingerprints were Verde's?"

"You were so composed in the face of all accusations that I believed you were unaware that what should have been your glass was carried from the dining room to Velasquez's room," explained Guillermo. "But when you asked Rojas to find Verde, it was so accurate a guess at the name of the man who had stabbed the colonel that I feared something was wrong. I sent Nova to investigate. He sought Diaz, purportedly with a message from Rojas, and found the fingerprint man just as he was discovering that the marks on the glass were not yours. De Nova shot Diaz, smashed the glass and destroyed the photographs."

Esteban Velasquez, in spite of a warning wave of Guillermo's gun, stepped forward to face Chris Morgan. "I apologize, Lt. Morgan," he said contritely. "We have done you a great wrong."

Rosita glided to her brother's side and murmured, almost timidly, "Can you ever forgive us, senior?" She shall make amends. When Capt. Rojas comes we shall tell him what Felix Guillermo has just said."

"Without proof your words will mean nothing," Guillermo laughed. "I find you here with Senior Morgan and the documents for which Col. Velasquez was slain. You helped Morgan get away from the Casa Grande. You will have a hard time convincing Rojas that you did not have a hand in Diaz' death."

TO PANCHE had wrapped a handkerchief about his injured hand and with fingers and teeth was striving awkwardly to knot the ends of the cloth. It seemed to Morgan that he was feeling deliberately slow about the operation, that under the shaggy brows of his lowered head Panchito was watching the two men with the gang.

"Stand aside, seniorita," ordered Guillermo. "You are obstructing my view of Morgan."

"Carumba!" Panchito swore as the handkerchief slipped from between his stubby teeth. "I cannot tie this cloth unaided. Would you take a moment to assist a helpless man, Senior Verde?"

Guillermo turned quickly to his confederate. "Stay where you are, Raymond!" Let the dog lick his own wounds."

He broke off, whirling back to face Tio Panchito. For with the movement of Don Felix's head, the bound hand of Panchito had swung like a club, landing squarely against the lamp. The chimney toppled, but it was the base of the lamp that had received the full force of the blow, and the vessel flew up from the table straight toward Guillermo.

But already Panchito was out of sight, diving for his knife somewhere on the floor. Verde's waving pistol jerked toward Morgan, and the fat man managed to take hasty aim and put the trigger against the shoulder of the leaping Esteban Velasquez struck against him.

"Verde!" Guillermo's voice cut through the blackened room. "Are you all right? Did you hit anyone?" "I got the American," panted the fat man. "I heard him fall to the floor when I shot."

"Good!" grunted Guillermo. "Don't shoot again unless you actually know where they are. Keep your head. We still have the upper hand, since they are unarmed."

From the depths of the room came Tio Panchito's animal-like snarl. "I have the knife, seniors. Be warned! If you make a light, I shall hurt this dagger into the first throat I see."

There was a sudden shuffling of feet, presently the creaking of the door hinges. In the silence that followed Morgan could hear the breathing of someone near him.

ACROSS the room, Tio Panchito spoke guardedly. They are gone, my little ones. The American—he is dead."

"No, amigito," Morgan answered. "Verde missed. But get the knife off me, please. The way this chair is holding me down—I feel as though I were standing on my head."

Two figures crept forward. "Let me do that, Rosita," whispered Esteban.

The ropes fell away from Morgan and Esteban helped him to his feet. Somewhere a chair scraped, and Tio Panchito could be heard mumbling vexatiously.

"Tio," Esteban called in a low voice, "what are you doing?"

"I'm looking for my knife," grunted Panchito. It is somewhere around here, but I cannot seem to locate it."

"Eh?" Astonishment raised Esteban's voice a trifle. "Madre de Dios, Panchito! You mean you had no knife when you threatened Guillermo and Verde?"

"I had nothing," Tio Panchito chuckled dryly. "It was what Senior Morgan would call the Yankee bluff. That Don Felix was the fool for once. He should have known that even if I had had the knife I could not have thrown it with any accuracy with my left hand. Ah, I have found it! I have the knife now!" He scrambled to his feet. "Let us go! Verde will run when he sees this blade of mine, and I am quite willing to match my steel against the lead in Guillermo's gun."

"No, you old fire-eater!" Esteban caught Tio Panchito by a shoulder. "Instead of running into further danger, you should be thanking God who knocked that lamp off the table."

"It was a reckless thing to do, Panchito," chided Rosita. "I thought—"

"I thought Verde had shot Senior Morgan. And you did not better our position. We are still prisoners. If we try to get out, Guillermo will shoot us."

The pause had cooled some of Panchito's ardor. He stole to the window. But the dark shadows of the porch made it impossible to discover any figures lurking about the doorway. There was a rear entrance to the house, and the two men and the girl followed as Panchito went to have a look at this smaller and darker alley. Tio tried to open the back door. But the old man had no more than touched the knob when a pistol cracked and a bullet slammed into a panel of the door. Panchito hastily backed away.

THEY heard Verde call to Guillermo that he had frustrated the first attempt to leave the house. Tio Panchito was cursing under his breath. "Come," he whispered. "This is not the first time I have had to use my wits to get out of my own house."

He led them into the third room of the small cottage, his own bedroom, a small cubbyhole crowded with dilapidated furniture. "Look! This was a tiny window. The next building makes a narrow passage with the wall of my house," Tio said. "I can slip through the window, creep up on Verde and cut his throat with my knife."

He gripped the fastenings of the window and tugged. But the window resisted all efforts to raise it, and in exasperation Tio Panchito inserted the edge of his knife under the frame and pried.

Came a crack and a snap, and the window stirred in its bed of dried paint. The old man slid the window up and the entire sash typically waterflooded. "The knife—I have broken the blade into two pieces. With these I can do no more than scratch the skin of Verde's fat back."

Chris Morgan peered into the narrow, icy space between the two buildings. "For that matter, I can feel past Verde in the darkness," he suggested.

"Impossible," Tio Panchito shook his head. "Anyone watching that back door can see the movement of a one-way pocket. As soon as we emerge into the clear we would be at the mercy of Verde's weapon."

"Nevertheless," said Morgan, "something must be done. The starlight is not very good. Verde might wing me a couple of times, but I may be able to rush him before he hits me in a vital spot."

A grin tugged at the corners of Tio Panchito's thin lips. "Who is the foolhardy one now, senior?" he inquired. "You will have only your bare hands."

"Wait!" Esteban Velasquez stayed Morgan as the latter was swinging a leg over the sill. "There is something better than your fists, senior, better even than Panchito's knife would have been."

Four Centuries Ago

North American Indians Used Rationing Idea During Wars

Robert A. Wauchope, director of Tulane University's middle American research institute in New Orleans, says the North American Indians were practicing rationing four centuries ago.

During a warring period, when armies of 60,000 to 125,000 men were on the move, an adequate supply of food, equipment and other provisions were accumulated in advance and then allocated to each of the fighting men, Wauchope said.

"Some tribes carried fighting rations with them in gourds which hung around the warrior's neck. The gourds were filled with hominy, to which they added water."

"When they ran short they expected tribute," Hitler style, from the land in which they were fighting. There still are picture records extant of the times before the conquest showing how much each town was allowed to contribute," Wauchope said.

Plan Was Dropped

Canadians Will Not Be Wearing American Type Steel Helmets

Canada's overseas troops are not going to be issued American-type steel helmets after all.

They will continue to wear the "dishpan" helmet for probably another 10 or 12 months when they are likely to adopt a new British helmet which should be ready by then.

Two months ago Canadian authorities, understanding that the British army was going to change to the American-type tin hat, planned to do the same and ordered 200,000 from the United States.

It was later learned that British officials, after further investigation, decided against adopting the American helmet. Wishing to conform to British army headgear, the Canadians dropped their plan.

One of the principal complications involved in the plan to adopt the American helmet has been the earphones used in the Canadian and British field signals. These phones fit over the ear like lugs and the American helmet coming down over the side of the head and ears cannot be worn with phones.

Army authorities also considered it impractical to switch to American earplugs as that would involve a change in signals equipment right through the army.

The proposed new British helmet will be designed to overcome this earphone difficulty while giving more protection to the head and neck than the present helmet.
